THE DREW TRIAL me Important Testimony About the Frandulent Vouchers.

The cross-examination of Dr. Detevan localgood, a witness for the presecution a the case of John W. Drew, nows or tial charged with presenting false veachers, was resumed in the Crimina Court this morning. He admitted that the bureau could purchase modifine here without informing him, and all the knowledge he had of goods purchased was that gained from the bills sent him at the laboratory in Brooklyn.

Dr. Samuel F. Cours, Medical Director at Philadelphia

Dr. Samuel F. Caues, Medical Director at Philadelphia examined the ball of Mr. Drew for April 2, 1883, and said he knew nothing about the bill. The witness, on cross-examination, said that it was a fact that officers at the different stations, in cases of emergency, cond-make parchases of medicines.

Peter A. Joyce testified that it would have required 62 boxes, each containing 5 child feet to hold the goods in one bill, and 26 boxes of the same size to hold those in the other.

In the other,

Ex-Surgeon Philip S. Wales described the nanner in which the work was done while he was in charge. He denied authorizing the purchase of the goods embraced in the bills of Mr. Drew.

On cross-examination the witness denied that he bought articles under one appropriation and had the vouchers made out for goods payable under another appropriation. He denied may knowledge of a picture of himself, ordered for the rooms of the chief, being paid for on any voucher as making allows. Dr. Adrian Hudson informed the Court

Of the routine work of the bureau.

Marsh B. Clark, Benjamin White and Brock Shaw were the last witnesses examined for the day and their testimony was a repetition of that given at the first trial. Dr. William K. Van Ripen was on the stand when the court adjourned for the day.

A NARROW ESCAPE.

Police Officer Skidmore Nearly Meets

Policeman Patrick Skidmore of Lieutenant Kelly's command had a narrow scape last night from meeting the fate of Officer Fowler, for whose murder John Langster was hanged about ten days ago. Officers Skidmore and Simpson were attracted to the corner of Third and K streets northwest, about 10 o'clock last night, by a disorder caused by a growd of colored men. Skidmore put a desperado named Sam, alias "Jenny" Gant under arrest, and Simpson took into custody two others. On the way to the station Gant resisted and made an assault on the officer. The latter drew his blackjack to subdue The latter drew his blackjack to subdue the prisoner. Gant got the weapon away from the officer. Skidmore then endeavored to draw his revolver, but the prisoner was toe quick for him and, drawing one as quick as a flash, aimed it at the policeman's head and pulled the frigger. Seeing his danger, Skidmore quickly took his hand from his pistol-spocket and attempted to catch the arm of the prisoner and doaging his head at the same instant. The pistol was discharged and the bullet passed through the hand of the officer, Gant broke away and ran, and the officer fired two shots at the fleeing prisoner and pluckily pursued and captured him at Third street and New Jersey avenne.

In the Police Court this morning Gant was put on trial for assault with intent to was put on trial for assault with intent to kill and was held for the action of the grand jury in $500 ball. When passing back into the dock Gant made an insolent remark to the policeman.
